" NOAH HAD HIS TROUBLES."

In this episode of Captian Noah's adventures, we find that he had a lot of trouble. Infact a lot of things happened to the old boy that has not been known to heretofore.

The first thing he did on the first few days was to put on his deep sea diving suit and go overboard for a bucket of water to wash his face, 'cause the old kid was always a bear on cleanliness.

Then later in the week one of the mischevious monkeys got him in trouble with two love sick leopards. This darned monk was watching them and then threw a bucket of water on them from the opening in the top of the cabin. The leopard discovered from where the water came from and climed up after the scroundel. Inside the cabin, the monkey tells old Noah to climb up and look thru, and see how the weather is. Noah falls for this bunk and gets a wicked clout on the noodle. The old kid falls flat on the floor, he frightens one of the mules and kicked out thru the roof. This time he lands by the skipper gorilla who is at the wheel; they have a little argument, but finally Noah takes the wheel.

Things go from bad to worse, he has some trouble with one of the goats that wanted to eat his trousers. Then the old Thomas cat calls him in to meet the new brood. After that follows thick and fast the cries of Mamma Mamma. There are baby allgiters, and baby this and that. Then the storks come carrying hundreds of baby elephants. They start dropping them right above the ark. Noah doesn't know which way to run, so he tries dodging them. This work for awhile, then one lands right on him and then they all crash right thru the deck Down below deck, poor Noah tries to get up but other elephants follow thick and fast. The poor old dear is nearly crushed to death, at last he struggles to safety, only to be attracted by more cries of Mamma! This time its in the skunk box. So Noah thinks it a good idea to throw it overboard, but in his haste, he allows the skunkettes to drop out. Then he is in for real trouble. The scroundels shase, poor Noah overboard. The last he was seen, poor Noah was struggling in the cruel waves with forty thousand skunks close at his heels
